survival against other great powers seeking to undermine their power and position determining prestige seeking behavior as psychotic and destructive weak states suffer from systemic vulnerabilities and trade whatever political power they have to a great power for economic assistance if enough weak states support a particular great power then that great power will become more powerful relative to competitors this forms an international system fashioned by these transactions interrogative phrases and the syntax semantics interface starts by analyzing the interpretation of interrogative phrases in single and multiple constituent questions including their interpretation under adverbs of quantification the results are then put to work in a novel approach to some of the constraints on dependencies between fronted interrogative phrases and the associated gaps superiority weak crossover as well as the so called weak islands the wh island the negative island and the factive island it is argued that the possibility of fronting an interrogative phrase out of these configurations is determined by a semantic pragmatic condition on questions which requires them to be answerable the analysis is worked out principally on romanian a language which allows multiple wh fronting the results are then extended to english audience researchers and students in syntax semantics and their interface as well as linguists studying the relation between the acceptability of sentences and the larger discourse context this book is most easily described as philosophy of history however this description may be a little misleading truly this is a work of applied philosophy that was originally conceived not in a philosophy seminar but in a school of public policy as a philosopher learning about the study of public policy formation i was frequently struck by what i perceived to be two very different sets of assumptions and methods at work i found these assumptions and methods to be mutually exclusive conceptually but they were often employed simultaneously on the one hand it was often accepted as given when studying past policy changes and political events that history is shaped by impersonal forces that people s actions can and ought only to be understood as manifestations of their own material interests and that individuals are to be identified as representatives of their respective demographic categories thus for example the events in question were explained in terms of the race or class of the various parties when such an approach was challenged with an appeal to the actual arguments and stated rationales of the participants of the historical moment in question this was taken to be an option that might be employed either in conjunction with the former method or as an alternative which method one chose to emphasize or employ exclusively seemed more a function of inclination or intuition than rational adjudication simple text and photographs explore different manifestations of the triangle
